ABOUT Mii

Mii tells a story without borders, which begins with the story of Bapan & Lucie: that of our meeting on the benches of the École des Arts Décoratifs in Paris, creating a passionate collaboration between our two cultures.

In 2009, we travel to India. We meet a lot of artisans who tell us about their economic difficulties... They feel pressure to move to another region or another country, far from their family. We want to change this because we believe in the values of handmade, local production.

We did not create a show brand. Mii is the image of our lives : a creative, traveling, joyful, multicultural, and sustainable wardrobe, bubbling with ideas. It is a wardrobe that brings the expertise of the artisans to life.

Mii has its own workshop, combining know-how such as hand embroidery, screen printing, block printing and hand weaving.

Mii SS26

Several months ago, my parents came back from my grandmother's house carrying three shoeboxes. Inside were thousands of postcards, dating from the 1950s to today. Time-worn postcards, scribbled with "lots of love from..." and "holiday memories." Going through them felt like a journey through time and space.

This collection reflects the spirit of those shoebox postcards: a kaleidoscope of images, classic postcard landscapes, clichés and handwriting styles.

I made a selection – kept the ones that made me dream and feel the sunshine, the gentle rhythm of summer holidays. A beach scene from the 70s, a view of the French Riviera, a harbor in Martigues, a landscape from Venasque, and of course, Greece and the Cyclades. The collection is therefore composed of two main themes: Provence and the Cyclades.

Beyond these landscapes that we reinterpreted, redrawn, stylized – we also worked with symbols that are reminiscent of these places: bougainvillea for Greece, mimosa for the South of France, and many more that you'll discover throughout the collection.

Colors play a central role: the many blues of the Cyclades, of the sky, the sea, the doors and windows; the black of Greek women's traditional clothing; the white of lime-washed walls; the yellow of Provençal tablecloths, mimosa, and sunshine; the deep blue-violet of blooming lavender; slate grey tile tones...

Embroidery has been a key focus in this collection – sometimes on its own, sometimes combined with prints. Woven stripes, bayadère or two-tone, and small gingham checks form the core patterns of our woven fabrics.

Our craftsmanship is present throughout: Aari embroidery, Kantha stitching, block printing, hand weaving, applique... these are precious pieces – and let us say it again – each one is unique!

We hope this collection will delight you, and that you'll see these pieces as we do: messengers of a poetic, joyful, unconventional world – like painted postcards in which to wander and dream."
